PERSONAL STATEMENT

I am a self-taught freelance web developer with a passion for building exceptional digital experiences. My interest in web development began in 2005 when I was creating custom myspace themes (with HTML & CSS) for myself and friends. I have continued this love of web development ever since, working on projects in my spare time.

Having worked in the hospitality industry for many years I am now pivoting to work in, and fully commit to, a field that I consider my true calling. Hospitality has been a major influence on my professional development and is the primary driver of my time management, leadership and communication skills. I believe these skills, coupled with my passion are what make me a great candidate for the position of web developer.
